AUSTRALIAN WHISKEY FLIGHT $38

- NANT TASMANIAN BOURBON CASK
- STARWARD NOVA SINGLE MALT
- 23RD STREET DISTILLERY HYBRID

The first legal whisky distillery in Australia was established way back in 1822, in Tasmania. That's 2 years before the Glenlivet, the "distillery that started it all" in Scotland. However, unlike in Scotland, legal distilling in Tasmania was to be a very short lived affair. Until the early 1990's, a 150 year government ban prevented whisky production in Tasmania. The hiatus was lifted after whisky entrepreneur Bill Lark challenged the ban and obtained a license to become the pioneer of Tasmania's whisky renaissance.

"Islay's past is pervaded by innumerable tales of home distilling, smuggling and illegal whisky production" and adds that the eight older distilleries all began as small, illicit producers. All were built near water since grain was shipped on boats and the finished whisky was transported via water.
